Trucker Appeals Elsea Judgment

An appeal by the Benedict Transportation Lines, Inc., Columbus, on file in the state supreme court Saturday, asks reversal of Pickaway county court judgment granting Mrs. Ruth Elsea, Washington township, $5,666 for the death of her husband, Asa, killed in an auto-truck collision on Route 23, North of South Bloomfield on March 13, 1936.

Mr. Elsea and John McCrady, both of Circleville, and Bernard Dowden, Wayne township, were killed in the collision. The appeal charged that Mr. Elsea and Mr. McCrady were intoxicated and that Mr. Elsea was driving on the wrong side of the road. The brief added that the car was owned by the Taylor Motor Sales Co., former Circleville concern, and that it had been used without the owner's consent.

The Common Pleas court jury award was affirmed by the Court of Appeals last June. Mrs. Elsea, as administratrix of the estate of her husband, asked $22,786 damages.

Two other cases resulting from the accident are on file against the company. Gilbert Dowden, administrator of the estate of Bernard Dowden, seeks $25,000. William F. McCrady, administrator of the estate of John W. McCrady, asks $13,361.40.

A motion to certify the Elsea case to the supreme court was filed after the Court of Appeals decision. A brief on the motion was recently filed.

12 ARMY PLANES DOWNED BY RAIN AND LOW CEILING

HIGH POINT, N. C., Sept. 3.—(UP)—Twelve army pursuit planes from Langley field, Va., were forced down near here today by rain and low ceiling. First reports said one of the planes crashed into a house in landing, injuring at least two persons.

Another plane nosed over in a rough field and its propeller was broken. The pilot was uninjured. The other ships landed safely.

One plane smashed into a house owned by Howard Slade, a farmer living in a remote section 12 miles from Reidsville. Fred Lee Gann, 6, and a brother were brought to a Reidsville hospital for treatment. Their injuries were not believed serious, it was said.

Eight persons were in the Slade house when the plane crashed into it in landing.

The 12 planes were commanded by Major R. L. Maughn. They left Langley field on a training flight for Montgomery, Ala., at 4 a. m., but over middle North Carolina ran into a steady rain and low-hanging clouds that made it necessary to land hurriedly.

BEST proof in the world of how Pittsburgh has been gripped by the baseball pennant fever is this scene of thousands of women stampeding their way into Forbes Field on the last ladies' day of the season. The Pirates hold a fairly comfortable first-place margin.

SOWERS YOUTH WINS AWARDS IN W. P. A.'S DERBY

A "vehicle" built of four tireless wheels and a plank with a rope to guide it, Friday, won major honors for Russell Sowers, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Sowers, 209 W. High street, in a "derby" conducted by W. P. A. playground authorities on the High street hill. Young Sowers, speeding from the top of the hill to a finish line near the Hargus creek bridge, was faster than any other driver. His vehicle won first place in the sprint event and was third in distance competition.

Young Sowers received a football and a pass to the Cliftona theatre because of his cart's ability.

The distance test was won by Bus Palm in a vehicle built by John Courtright. Junior Geib was second and Sowers third. The Court-right-built machine was the only one not erected by the boys themselves, but all the other winners used bricks to help their speed down the hill so all was fair. Palm received a dip net.

Verlo Arledge was second in the speed event and Weldon Owens was third.

All prizes except first were theatre passes.

The contest was conducted by Walden Reichelderfer, supervisor of the W. P. A. playgrounds. Judges were Dan McClain, Even Merriman and Delos Marcy.

About 600 persons watched the derby and were thrilled by the speed the home made vehicles attained. No timing was done, the winner being decided by the first to cross the line. Some estimated the speed of some machines at more than 40 miles an hour. The vehicles driven by Palm and Geib coasted past the Hargus creek bridge onto the part of the street being repaired by the city service department.

TREASURY GETS $100 FORFEITED BY TWO PERSONS

H. O. Eveland, N. Court street, and Miss Harriet Lewis, Columbus, forfeited bonds of $50 each in police court Saturday at 9 a. m. by failure to report for hearings on charges of participating in the "numbers" racket.

Eveland was scheduled to have a hearing Friday night. He asked a postponement and posted bond. Miss Lewis posted bond Friday afternoon. It was her second arrest this week.

Daniel Pfoutz, librarian, disclosed plans for the operation and schedule of the library truck for the Fall and Winter. Possible development of a W. P. 100,000 See Daring Acts At Air Race

Aerial Stunts, Wartime Maneuvers To Precede Derby Arrivals

MUNICIPAL AIRPORT, Cleveland, Sept. 3.—(UP)—Approximately 100,000 persons will watch the National Air races program of daring aerial stunts and wartime maneuvers by military fliers today while waiting for the 10 Bendix racers from Los Angeles.

Roaring across the 2,050-mile distance from the West Coast were nine men and a woman, out to crack the $30,000 Bendix trophy Los Angeles-Cleveland record of Frank W. Fuller who was among the starters.

The on-lookers today were seeing men and women leap with parachutes from 10,000 feet and wait as long as they can before opening the "bags," army and marine planes stage war maneuvers, stunt men risk their lives in crazy loops and dives and novelty aerobatics.

The Bendix racers were expected to land at close intervals through the afternoon. The winner was to be judged according to elapsed flying time, regardless of whether he

NEARLY 400,000 ATTEND RECORD OHIO STATE FAIR

COLUMBUS, Sept. 3.—(UP)—Director of Agriculture Earl H. Hanefeld estimated today that a new attendance record of close to 400,000 had been established at the 88th Ohio state fair the past week.

The weather was perfect for the farm exposition. A light sprinkle on Wednesday was the only rain during the fair.

William Locke, 23, of Mechanicsburg, won the grand championship in the sheep-shearing contest and will represent Ohio at the International Livestock show at Chicago in December. Richard Hoffman of route 5, Greenville, won the senior sheep-shearing competition.

The Muskingum county dairy judging team of Rebecca Frazier of Nashport, Lyle McCormick of Norwich and Glenn Mozeda of Adamsville was first in 4-H club competition. Rebecca is only 14, too young to compete at the National Dairy Show here this Fall so that honor will go to the second-place Trumbull county team.

Trumbull county's general livestock team of Raymond Wilson, Harold Bailey and William Tinslin will be eligible to compete at the national 4-H club congress at Chicago in December.

Other club members winning trips to Chicago are Nadine Foster, Nellie, food judging; Kathleen Tarr, Mingo Junction, food judging; Margaret Eminger, German town, clothing; Catherine Armbruster, Perryburg, clothing; Mary Crampton, Sugar Grove, achievement record, and Marjorie Grether, South Zanesville, costume revue.

AMANDA BARS MARRIED PUPILS FROM SCHOOLS

Under a measure enacted by the Amanda board of education all married pupils will be barred from Amanda schools. Special legislation on the issue was passed during the last week.

Pupils who have married during the summer may not enter school and those who marry during the school term will be dropped from the roster. It is understood several complaints had been made regarding married pupils attending school in Amanda and the ruling has the support of the community. The action is the first of its kind in Fairfield county.

FULLER FAVORED TO WIN MAJOR PRIZE OF $9,000

First Aviator Takes Off At 4:47 A. M. With Cleveland Goal

ONE WOMAN COMPETING

Additional Award Promised For First To Reach New Jersey City

UNION AIR TERMINAL, Burbank, Cal., Sept. 3.—(UP)—Ross Hadley, flying a comparatively slow Beechcraft biplane, took off at 4:47 a. m. (Circleville time) today for Cleveland in the 2,042 mile Bendix air derby. He was the first of 10 fliers to get away.

The Los Angeles-sportsman pilot has one of the slowest planes in the $30,000 race, its top speed rated at 220 miles an hour. The race is against time, however, so he had no advantage.

Hadley planned to refuel at Wichita, Kans.

Poor flying weather was reported on the route between Amarillo, Tex., and Wichita. Racers were warned they must fly as high as 17,000 feet if they expected to have a clear atmosphere.

Almost 40,000 persons jammed Union Air Terminal, to watch the planes take off. They filled a grandstand, covered hangar roofs and lined the runway.

Fire engines stood by in case of emergency.

STRALEY FINED $200, COSTS ON DRIVING COUNT

Ross Straley, of near Williamsport, was fined $200 and costs and his driving rights suspended for 60 days, Saturday, by Judge Meeker Terwilliger of Common Pleas court.

Straley was convicted last Monday by a Common Pleas court jury of driving when intoxicated. He is making arrangements to pay his account.

Court to Decide Plea to Divide War Chest Fund

Dissolution of the Pickaway County War Chest Board of Trustees, organized on Sept. 22, 1920 for the aid of disabled veterans, and distribution of the remaining funds to veterans' organizations of the county on the basis of membership are asked in a petition filed in Common Pleas court Friday.

Members of the board, by virtue of their offices, are D. A. Yates, commander of Howard Hall post, American Legion; Judge C. C. Young of Probate court, and Forrest Short, county auditor. All signed the petition for the dissolution.

The duty of the board was to administer a fund turned over to it by the War Chest Committee. A policy of taking promissory notes was adopted for payment of the money loaned to veterans. Almost without exception, the petition explains, none of the money has been repaid.

Three Would Benefit

It is believed that the veterans' organizations, Howard Hall post, Circleville, Arch post, New Holland, and Henry Page Folsom post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Circleville, are more familiar with those deserving aid and more general benefit will be derived from the remaining funds by distributing the money through the organizations.

YOUTH, 17, SHOT OVER REMARK ABOUT GIRL

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 3.—(UP)—Warren Murphy, 17, son of a wealthy suburban market owner, was injured dangerously in a pistol duel with another youth over a remark made about Murphy's sweetheart, police believed today.

Officers were unable to get from Murphy the name of his assailant. "I'll settle this myself," he said.

Shot through the abdomen, physicians said Murphy was in serious condition but probably would recover. A .32 caliber steel-jacketed bullet passed through his body at the waist-line.

RURAL PROJECT WORKERS BEGIN IN AMANDA AREA

Construction on the branch of the rural electrification project for the eastern portion of Pickaway county will be started in the Amanda district next Tuesday. Marvin Steely, Washington township, Saturday, said that the crew starting in the Amanda district will move into Pickaway county as the work progresses.

Lines are still under construction in Monroe township. About 25 miles of lines will be erected in that district. Rural residents are rushing home wiring as rapidly as possible so lines may be energized. To date the only line energized is one extending from Pherson to Five Points, about three and a half miles.

Six were killed in one accident in Warren county, 13 miles South of here, and four died in the other on Springfield pike, near Wright aviation field.

Victims of the Warren county accident at the intersection of routes 48 and 73 were Mrs. Helen Myler, 42, of Dayton; her sons, Thomas, Jr., 14, and Robert 12; Curtis A. The cars came together with a terrific crash and the Myler car fell on its side in a ditch, pinning two of the victims beneath. The other car glanced off.

BERLIN—Hitler awaits Czechoslovak government's reaction to Sudeten counter-proposals before deciding on what announcements are to be made at Nazi party congress next week.

PRAGUE—Henlein returns with counter-proposals, to be presented to President Benes on Monday.

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—(UP)—War scares swayed world markets this week. Prices dropped when the European crisis was acute and strengthened later when Germany promised no hasty action in Czechoslovakia.

Stocks broke 4.89 points in the Dow-Jones industrial average on Monday, the widest decline since March 29. On Tuesday and Wednesday there were moderate recoveries. On Thursday, rails led a decline when mediation efforts on the wage controversy broke down. On Friday the list made its best advance since July 19, nearly wiping out the earlier losses and leaving the financial district in a more cheerful mood.

Strength in business indices induced many experts to predict a substantial pickup shortly if European tension eases.

REDLEGS OPEN CRUCIAL THREE-GAME SERIES WITH CHICAGO CUBS

VICTORIES OVER BRUINS WOULD HELP CHANCES

Pirate Tossers Go Sky High In Losing 11-10 To Cardinals

PAUL, BUCKY TO HURL

Hartnett Expected To Use Larry French, Dizzy Dean In Double Bill

CINCINNATI, Sept. 3.—(UP)—After a two-day breathing spell, the Cincinnati Reds and the Chicago Cubs, tied for second place six and one-half games behind the leading Pittsburgh Pirates, opened a three-game series today to decide which contender will give the Pirates a battle down the final stretch.

Two games were being played today. Big Paul Derringer, with a record of 18 won and 10 lost, and Bucky Walters, seven won and six lost, were to pitch for the Reds against the probable Cub hurlers, Larry French and Dizzy Dean. A single game will be played Sunday.

The club that manages to sweep this series or even win two games out of three will have a long-shot chance to overcome the Pirates who faltered badly Friday in losing to St. Louis, 10-11.

The Pirates hurlers, Cy Blanton and Joe Bowman, blew sky high in the fourth, fifth and sixth innings when the Cards pushed over all of their runs and Reds and Cubs hoped it might be a sign of poor pitching to come—for the Pirates.

The Reds, riding a four-game winning streak, were expected to draw crowds upwards from 20,000 for each day of the Labor holiday week-end. They meet the Cards at Redland field in two games Monday. The home attendance in Cincinnati has passed the 605,000 mark, only 30,000 to 40,000 short of the 1926 record attendance.

Hot Streak May Win For Cincinnati or Chicago

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—(UP)—William Harold Terry, cheerless leader of the New York Giants, who turned prophet the other day and awarded the National league pennant to the Pittsburgh Pirates may have spoken too soon just as he did back in 1934 when he asked, "Is Brooklyn still in the league?"

"Vinegar Bill" should know as anybody does that a 6½ game lead in early September doesn't mean a pennant. The Giants blew a lead larger than that in 1934 when Brooklyn rose up in wrathful vengeance and helped knock off the Terrymen while the Cardinals roared down the stretch to the championship.

The pennant race may be all over as far as the Giants and Terry are concerned but not for the rest of the league. The Pirates again are showing symptoms of another siege of "pennant jitters." They survived an August slump because none of the other contenders put on pressure. A September nose dive might be fatal if either the Reds or Cubs get hot.

The club that looks most dangerous is Cincinnati. They have nine games remaining with the Pirates, including a 4-game series at home to close the season. The Reds look like they are gathering steam. Johnny Vander Meer, of no-hit fame, has recovered from his ear infection and will return to duty soon. Charley (Red) Barrett, the crooning pitcher recalled from Syracuse, promises to give the Reds added strength on the basis of his night victory over Brooklyn Wednesday.

CLEVELAND PRO TEAM SCORES 10 TO BEAT STARS

CLEVELAND, Sept. 3.—(UP)—The heavily-favored professional Cleveland Rams scored a touchdown and field goal for all their points in the last half last night to come from behind and nose out the Ohio college all-stars, 10 to 7.

The all-stars handcuffed the Ram attack consistently in the first half when the pros chalked up only one first down. This came early in the game when John Drake, Ram smashed over the college players for 14 yards.

With 20,000 fans looking on, the all-stars made seven first downs in the first half and scored when Marty Slovak, former Toledo U. ace, intercepted a Ram pass and raced 52 yards for a touchdown. Jim McDonald, former Ohio State quarterback, place-kicked the extra point.

Nelson Peterson, formerly of West Virginia Wesleyan, started the Rams on a turnaround face in the third period when he place-kicked from the field for three points. The winning touchdown was counted by Bob (Twenty Grand) Davis, speedy halfback from the University of Kentucky and a Ram rookie. He also added the extra point.

OHIO STATE GRID STARS TO BEGIN INTENSE DRILLS

Schedule Calls For Game With Indiana U. On October 1

U. S. C. TILT WEEK LATER

Varsity Men Must Report Ready For Action On September 10

COLUMBUS, Sept. 3.—Ohio State gridgers invited back to participate in the two-a-day practice sessions commencing Sept. 10 will have to be in top notch shape for the first drill.

A glance at the schedule will show the reason why no time can be allowed for any preliminary conditioning. Coach Francis A. Schmidt's team will face the only Western Conference team which bested it last season in the opening game and on the following Saturday meets the only other team which defeated it during the 1937 campaign. They are, respectively, Indiana and Southern California.

The complete schedule follows: Oct. 1—Indiana at Columbus. Oct. 8—Southern California at Columbus.

Oct. 15—Northwestern at Evanston. Oct. 22—Chicago at Columbus. Oct. 29—New York University at New York City.

Nov. 5—Purdue at Columbus. Nov. 12—Illinois at Champaign. Nov. 19—Michigan at Columbus.

From the opening practice session Schmidt will concentrate on building a starting lineup which can stand up under the pressure of the early part of the campaign. This is not to indicate that the second half of the schedule will be a bit easier for it obviously is not. However, the task of hitting all mid-season form before the first game will occupy the 1938 candidates during September.

18 Days of Practice

There will be but 18 actual days of practice before the Scarlet gridgers face Bo McMillin's Hoosiers on Oct. 1. Indiana bumped Ohio State out of the Big Ten title last season and will be equally as formidable an opponent this season. Schmidt suffered his third one-point defeat in four years here at the hands of Southern California in the game at Los Angeles last year. The Trojans invade Ohio stadium this fall and the tilt shapes up as one of the year's outstanding intersectional meetings of the season.

First game away from home will see the Bucks in action against Northwestern. Champions in 1936, the Wildcats will again hit out for the high road. Chicago will be the next team to appear here before Ohio State invades New York City to renew relations with New York university. In their last appearance here N. Y. U. took a bad beating and is anxious to avenge the loss in the home territory.

Three Big Ten Rivals

The three November games will pit Ohio State against three dangerous Big Ten rivals. Purdue with a good team in prospect appears here Nov. 5. The following week-end the Bucks travel to Champaign, Ill., to help Bob Zuppke enter his second quarter-century of coaching at Illinois. Windup of the season will be the Michigan game. Steeped in tradition, the Wolverine clash will be Ohio State's homecoming game.

Mrs. Homer Aldenderfer were Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Merrill Smith.

Mr. and Mrs. Milton Potts and sons, Howard, Glen and Kenneth, were guests Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. John Potts.

Mr. and Mrs. Merrill Smith and daughter, Evelyn, called on Mr. and Mrs. Kirby Hedges, Sunday.

Spurns Foreign Bid

TWENTY-one-year-old Florans Blasch reveals that she recently received an invitation from Lithuania to join the swimming team that will compete in the 1940 Olympic games. But the Chicago girl says she rejected the bid because she would prefer to swim for the United States.

TWO PITCHERS ORDERED HOME TO REST ARMS

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 3.—(UP)—Van Lingle Mungo and Wayne LaMasters, pitchers for the Brooklyn Dodgers, will return to their homes for the remainder of the season due to ailing arms, it was disclosed today.

The pitchers came here from Cincinnati and were examined by Dr. Robert F. Hyland, surgeon for the St. Louis Cardinals. He recommended by telephone to Larry McPhail, general manager of the Brooklyn club, that the pair should rest the remainder of the year.

Van Mungo, fire-ball right-hander, is suffering from an injury to the right arm and Southpaw LaMasters is suffering from soreness in the soft tissue of the left elbow, according to Dr. Hyland.

"Neither needs an operation but both do need rest," Dr. Hyland said. "Mungo should not touch a baseball for four or five months and rest also is the best treatment for LaMasters."

DOGS ARRIVING FOR LEAFY OAK FIELD CONTESTS

KENTON, Sept. 3.—(UP)—The pick of field trial "coon" dogs began arriving today for the 12th running Monday of the National Leafy Oak Coonhound trials.

Two past champions will lead the pack in competing for more than $2,000 in prizes which includes $1,000 grand prize. Buckeye Jack, owned by John L. Chamlin, Wilmington, O., 1935 and 1936 winner, and Kokomo Red, owned by Oris Nowland, Kokomo, Ind., 1937 champion, will return for the 1938 races.

First trial heat will begin at 8:30 a. m.

CAIN'S MARKET WHIPS PURINAS IN 11-2 SCRAP

Buskirk, Walker Missing As Feeds Fail To Halt Foes

BIG CONTEST TUESDAY

Fentons Have Chance To Tie For Title In Second Half

Cain's food market, in its third attempt, proved supremacy over a weakened Purina Feed team in the softball loop Friday evening, the score being 11-2.

Early in the schedule the Cain crew won only to have the contest overruled because of a technicality. Later the teams played an 8-8 tie, the Cains coming from behind to score six runs in a late inning. Friday, the Purinas were without Leonard Buskirk and Don Walker, their two hurlers, so they went down to defeat.

Ansel Roof tossed for the winners and was in good form. Catlett, inexperienced in the box, did all he could to aid the Purinas, but the Cain outfit was wearing its hitting clothes.

The second half schedule will end Tuesday evening when Fenton Cleaners and Eshelman Feeds meet to decide the titlist. If the Fentons win they will meet the Blue Ribbon Dairy in a single game for the second half gonfalon. The Fenton team won the first half crown, too.

Samuel—Spiritual Revival

From a small child Samuel faithfully served God and his nation. God talked plainly with him, telling him his will for the nation.

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Scripture—I Samuel 7:1-17.

Samuel sharply rebuked the people for their sin in forsaking Jehovah and serving false gods. "Return unto the Lord with all your hearts," he demanded.

The nation repented crying, "We have sinned against the Lord." In answer to Samuel's prayers for them, God gave them victory over the Philistines.

To remind the nation of their debt to God for his help, Samuel erected a stone which he called "Eben-ezer," meaning "Hitherto hath Jehovah helped us." (GOLDEN TEXT—I Samuel 7:3.)

I Samuel 7:3—"Prepare your hearts unto the Lord, and serve him only."

Samuel—Spiritual Revival

"BRASS TACKS" ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for Sept. 4 is I Samuel 7:1-17, the Golden Text being 7:3, "Prepare your hearts unto the Lord, and serve him only.")

By DR. ALVIN E. BELL OF NO MAN in the Old Testament can it be said more truthfully than of Samuel that "he wore the white flower of a blameless life." Of his unselfish life the people to whom he had been a life-long blessing said, "Thou hast not defrauded us, nor oppressed us, neither hast thou taken ought of any man's hand."

A Call to Repentance Samuel challenged the people to bring about a genuine change of their own hearts as a requisite to God's bringing about a change of their outer circumstances. He pointed out the way of repentance as the way of recovery, saying, "If ye do return unto the Lord with all your hearts, then put away the strange gods from among you, and prepare your hearts unto the Lord, and serve him only and he will deliver you out of the hand of the Philistines."

It was a period of great national depression and distress which invited the attack of the nation's enemies. For their defense Samuel urged them to rearm themselves spiritually, with the result that the people came in penitence and the self-discipline of fasting, crying, "We have sinned against the Lord." To Samuel they appealed, "Cease not to cry unto the Lord our God for us, that he will save us." This was all that God was waiting for: "Samuel Cried unto the Lord for Israel; and the Lord heard him." And a study of America's spiritual revival, and the way they have prepared the way for the return of prosperity after depression reveals the same definite relation of cause and effect between a nation's spiritual and economic recovery. History has repeated itself so often in this matter that it is strange that a nation calling itself Christian, as we do, would not try it!

"Eben-ezer" When Samuel's method of recovery by way of revival had brought the nation deliverance he saw to it that the lessons of the depression period should not be forgotten: "Then Samuel took a stone, and set it between Mizpeh and Shen and called the name of it Eben-ezer saying, Hitherto hath the Lord helped us." He did not vainly take to himself the credit for the change of the nation's condition as though he had planned it that way, but he gave the credit to Jehovah and to guarantee perpetual remembrance of this and gratitude for it he engraved in stone the acknowledgment of the nation's debt to God for blessings bestowed. The founders of our nation had much the same idea in mind for us when upon the recommendation of Benjamin Franklin, John Adams and Thomas Jefferson, they adopted as the Great Seal of the United States a pyramid surmounted by the all-seeing eye of him whom they regarded as having prospered their undertakings, for the words over the eye read "Annuit Cœptis," which is but another way of saying, "Hitherto hath the Lord helped us."

Services in St. Philip's Episcopal church, closed during August when the Rev. and Mrs. L. C. Sherburne were on vacation, will be resumed Sunday. Sunday school starts at 9:15 a. m. Holy communion will be observed at 10:30 a. m.

Choir practice will be held in the First Methodist Episcopal church Thursday at 7:30 p. m.

Meeting of the session of First Presbyterian church will be held at 10:15 a. m. Sunday.

Sunday school and preaching at Christ Lutheran church will be held Sunday at 2:30 p. m. The ladies society will meet on Thursday afternoon.

Last of the union twilight services of the three congregations of Stoutsville will be held in the tabernacle on the campgrounds Sunday evening. The Rev. S. M. Wendrich will preach. Special music has been arranged.

Rattlers Go On Hunger Strike

BERKELEY, Cal. (UP)—Rattlers, brought here for the annual convention of the American Society of Ichthyologists and Herpetologists, went on a hunger strike, presumably because they did not like the name of the society. To keep them from dying before the society closed its discussion of them, they were forcibly fed by thrusting a syringe, filled with hamburger, eggs and milk, down their throats.

Communion Rites On Presbyterian Program

First Presbyterian church will celebrate the Holy Communion of the Lord's Supper Sunday morning. As is the custom the pastor will present a short meditation entitled "The Spirit of Christ" prior to the Communion service.

A number of persons plan to be received into the membership of the church during this service.

The pastor plans to present new programs for the service. They are of a new design. The color is in harmony with the new decorations of the auditorium. A new church directory is to be found on the last page together with a few new ideas in keeping with pastoral duties.

The choir is in the process of reorganization for the Fall and Winter program. Work is to begin soon on the Christmas music. The director of the choir, Mrs. Clark Will, announces that the choir is open to all of high school age or over. The first practice will be held on Thursday at 7:30 p. m.

RETURN OF THE BEAVERS

THE restoration of beavers to their original haunts and activities is one of the most sensible changes of our American attitude toward wild life. Beaver colonies have already been re-established in various western forest areas, in appreciation of their value as conservationists. Now it is proposed to recolonize old beaver haunts in the east, including the chief national parks in Virginia, the Great Smoky Mountains, headwaters along the borders of North Carolina and Tennessee and the Acadia National Park in Maine. The movement may spread to the Alleghenies, Appalachians and Adirondacks generally.

One of the first forms of exploitation of this new continent was to loot the beaver communities to provide pelts for Europe. Americans, too, consumed their full share of the furs. Timber men came to regard the beavers as enemies because they felled trees and cluttered up the woods. All that the beavers did in that line was nothing to what their human enemies did.

They were really more intelligent than the men. It is recognized now that, on the whole, beavers benefit the forests by conserving the water with their dams and lessening floods. It will be pleasant to have them multiplying again and becoming a part of the visible wild life in our great public playgrounds.

FAITHFUL IN DEATH

THE loyalty of railroad engineers to their duties is proverbial, but the deed of George Amberman of the Long Island Railroad, which provides suburban service for New Yorkers, deserves special mention.

Operating a train carrying 300 passengers between Hicksville and Mineola, Amberman was suddenly stricken with a "massive cerebral hemorrhage." Ordinarily this would have meant instant loss of consciousness and control. The engineer refused to yield even in death. He overran two stops a little, signalled to back up, and made it safely both times, so that neither the fireman nor the conductor realized that anything was wrong, attributing it to wet rails. Finally he made a perfect stop at Mineola. Then he lapsed into unconsciousness and died two hours later.

The public more and more has to entrust its life and fortunes to the skill, judgment and faithfulness of human beings who in some way are less dependable than machinery. Flesh, blood and nerves may fail. Moral strength and responsibility are something else. No machine has them.

John Roosevelt is going to work in a Boston department store at a salary said to be about $18 a week, so he and Anne will probably be shopping for furniture, on the installment plan, for a two-room flat.

Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

HOMER MARTIN "NO PUSH-OVER"

WASHINGTON—No one can safely predict today the outcome of the dramatic fight between John L. Lewis and Homer Martin for control of the United Auto Workers. Lewis is a veteran, resourceful battler, and many things can happen before the curtain rings down on the struggle.

But one thing is certain: Young Homer Martin will be no push-over. No one is more acutely aware of this than Lewis. Whatever else he may think about Martin—and it's plenty—Lewis is not taking him lightly. He is paying Martin the unexpressed compliment of fighting him with every available resource.

That is very sound strategy. For while Martin is impulsive, temperamental and erratic, he is also a man of courage and tenacity. It is possible that he will be out-manuevered and out-fought, but he won't be scared and he won't be bluffed.

His career is conclusive proof of this.

CRUSADING PREACHER

Born in 1902 and raised near Marion, Ill., a coal mining region, Martin witnessed a number of bloody strikes that made an indelible impression.

Son of a school teacher, his first leaning was toward the ministry, and at the age of 19 he became pastor of the Goreville, Ill. Baptist church. Simultaneously he taught school and attended a nearby normal school, later graduating from William Jewell College at Liberty, Mo., in 1928.

Shortly afterward he took over the Baptist church in Leeds, Mo., a suburb of Kansas City. It was here that Martin started his career as a labor leader.

A large part of his congregation were auto workers, and Martin became interested in their efforts to increase wages and reduce hours. When he took to preaching pro-labor sermons, his deacons protested, insisted that he confine himself to the gospels.

Martin's answer was to throw up his pulpit and get a job in a Kansas City auto plant.

From then on he was continually in the center of union activity. He took a leading role in attempting to unionize his plant and was fired for his pains. Shortly thereafter he was elected president of the local he helped to organize. The same year he was chosen a delegate to the first national meeting of auto union locals.

Later, when these locals were given a charter as an international union by the A. F. of L., Martin was appointed a vice president under Frances J. Dillon, the hand-picked boss put at the head of the new union by William Green.

The Green-Dillon domination of the UAW was short-lived. In 1936, Martin and a group of other young militants convened a convention at South Bend, Ind., declared themselves independent of the A. F. of L., ousted Dillon and elected Martin president. Shortly thereafter the union entered the C. I. O., and launched an expansion drive that in 18 months made it the second largest CIO affiliate and one of the five largest unions in the country.

Martin's rise as a big-shot labor chief has been as turbulent as it was meteoric.

Rules About Handling of Ringworm on Hands

By LOGAN CLENDENIN, M. D.

WE HAVE BEEN having an epidemic of ringworm on the hands in our neighborhood lately.

There are several varieties of ringworm, one of which is known popularly as athlete's foot. When it gets on the hands, it is far more troublesome, because it is very contagious and the hands convey it everywhere.

Its appearance is quite characteristic—that eruption of little blisters which appear suddenly, mostly on the thin skin between the fingers, and which itch so abominably. The cause is a microscopic vegetable fungus which can be picked up and which insinuates itself under the skin.

Our neighborhood epidemic started in the golf club and was prolonged and stubborn. Every golf player in the locker house had it and it kept going around and around. It would appear to be under control on one hand, and then the next thing one knew it was all over the other.

So we decided the most important element in its spread was infection and we took steps to prevent that. First, the handle of every golf club was treated. The fungus loves leather, and might light on a moist golf club handle and live very comfortably waiting for a piece of human skin to clasp down on it and pick up a few shreds.

The golf club handles were wiped with pure formaldehyde and then wrapped in newspaper bandages.

This was done five consecutive days.

Nail brushes must also be regarded as reservoirs of reinfection and treated accordingly. They should be allowed to stand in a strong solution of creol. Or plunged in practically boiling water for a second or two—not long enough to soften the bristles but long enough to kill the fungus.

In treating the eruption itself, an important point to remember is that the condition is very stubborn and treatment must be kept up sometimes for weeks. Perhaps the best of all the applications is Whitfield's ointment, the efficiency of which depends largely on the salicylic acid it contains. It should be rubbed in thoroughly twice a day for at least a week.

Do not be deceived, if after the first one or two applications the eruption subsides. You may think you have it licked, but if you leave it alone it will break out again. Other preparations to use for killing off the fungus are tincture of iodine and mercuriochrome.

AFRAID TO MARRY

HELEN WELSHIMER

Written for and Released by
CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

READ THIS FIRST:
Judy Rogers, New York heiress, is stunned when Craig Denby, the man she loves, tells her on the phone that he has married a girl he met at a week-end house party. Afraid of marriage, Judy reflects she put Craig on once too many times. Then she phones her father's lawyers to learn the details of his financial crash, just announced in the newspapers, and talks with Ronald Birrell, a brilliant young attorney from Tennessee who has just joined the firm. Ronald both angers and fascinates Judy, doubting that she has the stamina to remain in New York and make her own way designing dresses which she says she likes to do. Judy's father tells her he is going west with her stepmother, assuming his daughter plans to join her mother abroad. Judy doesn't tell him her mother cabled, announcing other plans for the winter with her second husband. Craig phones to tell how sorry he is to learn of the family's reversal, then Judy comes upon Ronald as she goes downstairs for a book in the library. Ronald takes Judy for a drive and tells her about himself. On a sudden impulse he kisses her. Judy moves to a small hotel and begins to look for a job. She runs into Marjorie Barton, a boarding school roommate who persuades her to go home to dinner with her. While there Judy overhears Ronald, there to see Marjorie's father on business, talking with Marjorie.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

CHAPTER 7

AT RONALD BIRRELL'S words, "I've met the girl I could marry," Judy retreated into the shadows of the long draperies at the bedroom window. She did not move too far away to overhear the conversation. Not that she wished to eavesdrop. It was suddenly it was important to know about whom Ronald was speaking.

"May I ask who she is?" queried Marjorie.

"Certainly. She has brown eyes, flecked with gold, a tilted nose and curly brown hair. She's an aristocrat, high tempered, honest, fearless."

"From away?"

"No, from town."

"Do I know her?"

"It's possible."

Marjorie laughed softly. "Did you say all of this to warn me that you aren't in the running on the man-hunting tracks?"

"Not at all." He laughed, too.

"I felt you were an understanding person."

Someone called Marjorie away. She made her apologies and left Ronald, standing by the balustrade, staring into the street. He turned and, though he did not raise his voice, it carried distinctly to Judy.

"Coast is clear," Judy Rogers. Why not come out?"

She stepped through the window, reproach in her gaze.

"So Marjorie told you I was here."

"No, Marjorie never said a word. But you stepped to the balcony a while back, as the guests and family were dining. I arrived late and I happened to see you. I watched through which window you returned, that's all. But why aren't you at the party?"

"I'm not up to parties," she answered. "I'm resting."

"I see. Meantime, it just might happen that you are the girl of my dreams."

Marjorie spoke a while ago. She said this friend of hers wants a job, and doesn't want to ask a favor of anyone in her own group, so she thought I might suggest something."

"Didn't I tell you I'm going to France?"

"You did, Judy, but you aren't, I gather. I admire you for it. You're all right and Judy..."

His voice faltered a little.

"Yes?"

"I meant the words which you heard through the window. Never forget."

He was tall, wide-shouldered, lean and muscular. His hair was bright and crisp, his face was tanned, his profile as well as most as good as Craig's. Here there might be security. But she didn't love him.

"Better run. I hear steps," he said, and she went back through her window.

But hours later, when she and Marjorie had talked for a long time, she lay in bed and thought, "A little of Ronald. More of Craig. There was a slender white ship out there on the dark ocean, some place on it were two people who loved each other very much. Would it always be this way? Would nothing ever again be important, because she had placed her heart in Craig's pocket, then forgotten to tell him that it was there?

"You'll get used to it."

Could you weave the warp of life and love closely through the years, then unravel it at a single gesture? She did not know.

She wakened in the morning to a confusing memory. Then the events of the past several days righted themselves. She was alone, hunting a job. She must hurry to the hotel and see if an agency had called.

But it was several days before one did. Then the executive sent her to an Eighth avenue address.

"It's a firm which makes sports wear," she explained. "They need a model your size, to show size 14's before the out-of-town buyers. Better hurry right over. They need you."

Judy had lived in New York, off and on, for most of her 21 years. But she had never walked down Eighth avenue. It was an interesting section, to her, which one crossed on the way to the North river where the ocean liners were anchored. So she felt that she trod in a strange land as she hurried down the crowded street.

Boys manuevered small carts, filled with dresses, all alike, along the curb. Men had arms full of furs.

The elevator that carried her to the seventh floor was slow and uncarpeted.

Here, in a small room, a man in his shirt sleeves looked at her.

"Take off your hat," he said. Judy obeyed.

"Let me see your legs."

Judy flushed, then realized that the better this man's street and sport frocks and coats looked on her, the more sales' appeal they would have.

"The job is yours if you want it," the employer said, and smiled. It was a warm, friendly smile, that accepted her as a member of the firm.

"I'd like it very much," she answered, and smiled, too. "When do I start?"

"Now, if you want to. Had breakfast?"

"N-no." She didn't mean to tell him. She intended to pawn a necklace and buy some lunch.

"Neither have I. I'll order some for you when I send out for it."

Judy was taken to a crowded dressing room, told to remove her dress by the woman in charge of the half dozen models, and given a clean gingham smock. A few minutes later someone brought a small tray to her.

It held crisp toast, bacon, orange juice and a pot of coffee. The employer had not thrust his society upon her. He had been kind and remote at the same time. She was grateful.

Eating, Judy reflected that she had associated modeling with velvet carpets, low music, soft lights and flowers. She had thought only of the salons in the Fifties. Yet here, in this wholesale place, she had found kindness. Maybe Ronald was right. People would be charitable if you met them half way.

The woman who had taken Judy to the dressing room returned with an arm load of dresses. "A big buyer," she said. "Here. I'll help you get ready."

All morning long Judy paraded in dresses. A blinding blue one, a brown one, a black one, another blue, a tan, a rose, a brown again. When noon came, her back ached and her feet throbbed. She sat on a high stool and played with a sandwich which someone brought in.

"You'll get used to it," another girl told her. "Some days nobody comes. Other days we have a rush. But that buyer took several of your models. That means you know your stuff."

The day passed. Another one. Three, four, five. It was a week. The next one began.

Judy was too tired at night to care that she had vanished from her friends' sight. She saw in the social news that she had sailed for France to spend the fall and winter with her mother. She knew that her friends were relieved, because it would have been embarrassing to strike the right note of sympathy with a girl who had nothing new, not even a home.

One day she saw Ronald. It was raining and cold. Quite suddenly his red head and wide shoulders loomed up in a crowd. He was walking briskly, head bent, brows drawn, as though trying to solve a problem. She moved to the inside of the sidewalk, and averted her head. When she was successful, she would see him. Not now.

Not even Marjorie knew where she was, for she had changed rooming places, and sent her former roommate a note, telling her she would get in touch with her later in the autumn.

But for a moment after Ronald had passed she was lonelier than she ever had been. Not only lonely, afraid. What did it matter? She would soon be pride down the wind and call to him.

World At A Glance

—By—
Charles P. Stewart

Senator Carter Glass of Virginia seems to me to have had decidedly the better of Interior Secretary Harold L. Ickes in the recent controversy between the two.

That is to say, Glass called Ickes a considerably greater number of ugly names than Ickes called Glass.

Practically all that Ickes said about Glass was that the Virginian is a "political hypocrite." Glass said of Ickes that the secretary is a "confirmed blackguard," "mean, impertinent, insulting," "saturated with hate for every member of congress who voted against the New Deal's spendthrift practices," "foolish," "coarse," a "wanton falsifier," "asinine," an "intentional liar," and "one of the most prolific spenders of the taxpayers' money."

If I were referee, I couldn't but decide that, as vituperative champion, the senator won by a knockout.

I'm not an expert, but I'd like to hear from sporting authorities on this question.

ICKES CASE

The nub of the thing is this: The New Deal has fathered some billions in federal appropriations for expenditure on local improvements. Glass opposed these appropriations, but was outvoted.

Since then, according to Ickes, he has tried as hard as anyone to get his state's share of them for the Old Dominion Commonwealth. "That's why Ickes calls him a 'hypocrite.'"

GREED IS DENIED

Glass denies that he has sought very large federal grants for Virginia.

He agrees that he has asked for some—in strict moderation. And why shouldn't he have done so? he inquires.

Here are 48 states to which this "gravy" is voted.

Shall Virginia, alone, help to bear the whole federal tax load, without getting anything for itself? Senator Glass doesn't think this would be fair, despite his objection to the scheme's principles.

But he has been less than greedy, he relates.

A HYPOCRITE

Heaven knows, I never would have picked Carter Glass as a hypocrite.

Maybe he's a conservative. Maybe, from the New Deal point of view, he's a reactionary or a Bourbon Democrat.

But a "hypocrite"? He's as different from that as he is from a Republican.

And, by the way:

In 1932 Carter made the most effective pro-Roosevelt campaign speech. It was so recognized. Now, as per Ickes, he's a "hypocrite!"

QUARRELSOME

Carter Glass is a quarrelsome old bird.

A few years ago I had a question I wanted to ask concerning the federal reserve board, which he invented. I dropped into his office to put my query.

The senator misunderstood me to ask something inimical to his brain child. "Yeow!" he responded, to my interrogation. "Senator," I responded, "I'm after information, and I've come to hearquarters for it."

After that he was as gentle as a kitten.

RUNS IN 1942

As a kitten!

But I'd bet that Secretary Ickes had stirred up a wildcat.

There wasn't any use in enraging Senator Glass at this juncture, either. He won't be a senatorial candidate until 1942 anyway.

But there's no sense in making him mad in the meantime.

FIRST NIGHTER STARS

Barbara Luddy and Lee Tremayne, radio's most popular romantic team, stars of the "First Nighter" dramas, will make their initial appearance on other than their own program when they are heard as the first guest stars of Horace Heidt and his Brigadiers over an NBC-Red network, from Minneapolis, Sunday, Sept. 11, at 9:00 p. m.

The popular dramatic team will be starred in an original one-act play, "S'posin'," by Eugene Carman. Chosen this year by fans as the most popular actress heard regularly on the air, Miss Luddy is one of radio's finest performers. She was internationally known for her work on the stage and screen when she became Don Ameche's leading lady on "First Nighter" at the time he went to Hollywood to make pictures. Tremayne, who succeeded Ameche as leading man of the top-light dramatic show, is the son of a former English actress and is a gifted artist and athlete as well as one of radio's most popular actors.

Other features of the program will be a Heidt novelty, offered by no other band,—a series of numbers each featuring a different section of the orchestra. Included will be: "Clarinet Polka," "Swing on the Singing Guitar," "Toy Trumpet," "Goonbay Drums," "When a Gypsy Makes His Violin Cry," "Shoutin' Liza Trombone," "The Piano Turner Man" and "When He Plays On His Bass Fiddle." Concluding feature of the program will be a hand style contest with the audience guessing the hands imitated.

ALL BUT the late blooming perennials may safely be divided and replanted at this time of the year. The little plants which have been taken from the big ones will make ample root growth before the ground freezes. When the ground has frozen these new plants should be mulched to protect them over the winter.

There is a proper method of preparing plants for separation. First water them thoroughly so the soil about them becomes well soaked. Then dig up the plants, taking plenty of earth with them. Small clumps can be easily pulled apart by hand, as shown in this Garden-Graph. Large clumps should be cut into divisions with a sharp tool.

When dividing old clumps of phlox or iris only replant the vigorous outside shoots. While the QUESTION: On one end of the porch, I have put a trumpet vine. At the other end, there are two wistarias. Is it true that these vines draw termites to the house? I know of two cases where garages are being ruined by termites. On one garage is a trumpet vine, several years old, on the other wistaria. Is this just a coincidence? These species are such beautiful vines.

ANSWER: There is absolutely no connection between termites and the trumpet vine or wistaria, in fact, with any specific plant. Termites, at least the species that we have here in Ohio, must live in the ground and get into buildings or other structures either by the wood being in contact with the ground or by tunneling up through concrete blocks or masonry walls until they reach the wood. They must always maintain contact with the soil, however, for their moisture supply. May I suggest that you ask your local county agricultural agent for a copy of our extension bulletin on "Control of Termites" which will give you complete information on this subject.

QUESTION: We wish to plant American elm trees in front of our home. Since our lot is only 70 feet wide we would like to know how many we should plant.

ANSWER: Elm trees are large and most people forget they should be planted 65 to 75 feet apart for best results. One elm would be enough in your garden. Incidentally other shade trees should be planted at least 40 to 50 feet part, to give them adequate space to develop and grow.

QUESTION: Will you please tell me if it is possible to raise the Rocky Mountain columbine from seed in Ohio? What method should I use and when is the best time to plant it?

ANSWER: This columbine is no more difficult to raise than the others. People forget, however, that the columbines require several weeks to germinate and usually neglect to keep watering them until they come up. I would that you sow them in a little cold frame some time this November so they will germinate early next spring. You will find complete information on this in our perennial flower bulletin which you may secure from your county agricultural agent.

For Sunday, September 4

SUNDAY'S HOROSCOPE is a very happy one for affairs of a social, domestic or sentimental character. It also is very encouraging for those seeking honors, favors or preferment at the hands of superiors, employers or those in authority. And while there may be many friendly contacts, there might be one false slip causing anxiety.

If This Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a very lively year, with important events, probably of a sudden and surprising nature, forecast. These may involve careful dealings with major corporations or influential persons.

A child born on this day may be particularly able, enterprising, adventurous and ambitious, and should rise to place and power, probably through its independence, craft, shrewdness and diplomacy. Its career may be eventful be funnier than if both forces actually appeared. Billy Mills' orchestra and Donald Novis will furnish the welcoming music.

SAFETY PAYS PROFITS

MOST SO-CALLED "safety plays" involve the sacrifice of prospects for overtricks in order to insure the success of the contract. Some of the most careful measures, however, make the contract sure and at the same time develop a chance for extra tricks which would not exist if the more risky plans were followed.

The bidding on this deal was 1-Heart by South, 1-Spade by North, 2-Hearts by South, 4-Hearts by North and 6-Hearts by South.

West led the club Q, which South won with the K. He next cashed the hearts A, Q and J, and followed with the ruff of the club 2. Next came the leads of the spades A, K and Q and on the latter the club 6 was discarded. The diamond 3 was next led, and because the declarer was fortunate in finding the diamond A with East, he made his contract.

His correct play is to attempt a squeeze for seven against whoever holds four spades, if that player also has the diamond A. He should win the first club and ruff the club 2 with the heart 9. Then a trump should be led to the closed hand for a club ruff with the heart K. Next should come a trump to the South hand and the remaining hearts cashed. East must either discard a spade or blank his diamond A. When the high club is then cashed, East is in a hopeless position.

South had been doubled by East at 4-Hearts, which he redoubled. After the lead of the diamond 3, how should he proceed to make game?

WELL, I'LL TELL YOU—
BY BOB BURNS

I've always been pretty much of a dreamer, both during my sleepin' and wak'in' hours. So here lately I been readin' up on the subject of dreams, but I find that most authors on the subject use such big words I can't get heads nor tails what they're talkin' about. One author said that dreams are related to the subconscious mind and have nothin' to do with daily activities.

But the other day I played golf while my wife went down town to an auction sale. That night in my sleep I hollered "fore!" My wife sat up in bed and hollered "Four and a quarter!"

THEATRES

AT THE CLIFTONA

The screen, which lately has focused a majority of its bigger productions on biographical subjects, has seen many remarkable portraits of characters taken from the past.

Few of these historic personalities, however, enjoyed a life more significant and romantic than the Marco Polo so few people seem to know, whom Samuel Goldwyn has chosen as the hero of "The Adventures of Marco Polo," his rollicking adventurous romance which brings Gary Cooper to the Cliftona Theatre for three days on Sunday.

Marco Polo's journey to the Thirteenth Century court of the great Kublai Khan in Kambalu, Peiping, had as its object the extension of private commerce and the development of new trade opportunities for the Polo Brothers, Nicolo and Maffeo, Marco's father and uncle, who were important merchants in the city of Venice.

Thus, as the world's first traveling salesman, Marco set out for distant Cathay—a three years' journey through deserts and mountains, beset every mile or so by brigands and perils unknown to Western civilization.

Marco was then 21, a young game-cock, skilled in the use of arms, an excellent horseman and athlete, fearless and preserving in the pursuit of trouble, trade and amours.

AT THE GRAND

What's the hardest job in the world?

A great stage comedian once went to Hollywood to have a try at the movies. The director took the comedian out on a set, ordered the lights turned on . . . sat back in his swivel chair and spoke to the comedian.

"Go on," he said, "be funny."

Next to that perhaps should come the job of Lew Pollack and Sidney D. Mitchell, two of screen-dom's ace song writers.

"Write a song about children romping on the shores of a large inland sea . . . write a silly love song . . . write three songs as they should have been written 80 years ago . . . write a serious love song . . . write another love song about the Swiss Alps (funny) . . . write a college song . . . write an Indian war dance."

These are just a few of the orders these experts have received on atmosphere-arias-to-order in the last seven assignments for 20th Century-Fox musical movie hits.

Sixteen song hits went into such well remembered films as "Heidi," "Love and Hisses," "In Old Chicago," "Rebecca," "Thin Ice" and "Life Begins in College."

Their latest poser was to prepare the score for the Ritz Brothers in "Kentucky Moonshine."

They came up with the toe-tickling melodies which those people who attend the Grand Theatre, Sunday, where "Kentucky Moonshine" is the current laugh sensation, are humming already. The tunes are "Moonshine Over Kentucky," "Reuben, Reuben, I've Been Swingin'" and "Sing a Song of Harvest."

guests present included: Mr. and Mrs. Warner Johnson and daughter, Paula, of Dayton; Mr. and Mrs. Russell Miller and children, Grace Ellen and Paul Henry, of Sunbury; Mr. and Mrs. Roy A. Hutchinson and children, Barbara Ann, Roy Alvin, Jr., Richard, Darrell and Sheila; Mr. and Mrs. Francis Montgomery; Mr. and Mrs. Paul C. Redman, of Columbus; Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth List and son, Don Alan; Mr. and Mrs. Claude Crabb and children, Mary Ann and Claude, Jr.; Mr. and Mrs. Howard Nessel; and Miss Carolyn Bochart, of Williamsport; Sherman J. Belknap of Circleville; and Wendell Smith Miller, of North Hollywood, California. The class will hold another reunion in 1939. It will be in Williamsport the third Sunday in August.

Among those from here who attended the Ohio State Fair at Columbus, Sunday, were Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Alkire; Mr. and Mrs. G. P. Hunsicker; Mr. and Mrs. George B. DEWEY READY TO CLOSE CASE AGAINST HINES

"Treasurer" For Schultz
Mob Last To Appear
For State

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—(UP)—District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey today worked on the climatic evidence with which he expects to clinch his case against James J. Hines, Tammany leader charged with conspiracy in a lottery racket, soon after the trial is resumed Tuesday.

One of the three star witnesses—survivors of the Dutch Schultz mob which allegedly paid Hines for protection—remained to testify. He is Harry Schoenhaus, the mob treasurer, the only man, it is said, whom Schultz trusted out of his sight with money.

Like George Weinberg, Schultz's operations manager who appeared during the first week of the trial, and J. Richard (Dixie) Davis, the mobs "attorney general" who completed his damaging accusations against Hines Thursday, Schoenhaus also pleaded guilty to the lottery indictment and agreed to testify for the state. As "money bags" in the racket that grossed $20,000,000 a year, it was believed that he would have a startling story to tell about whom and under what conditions Schultz paid for immunity from policemen and the courts.

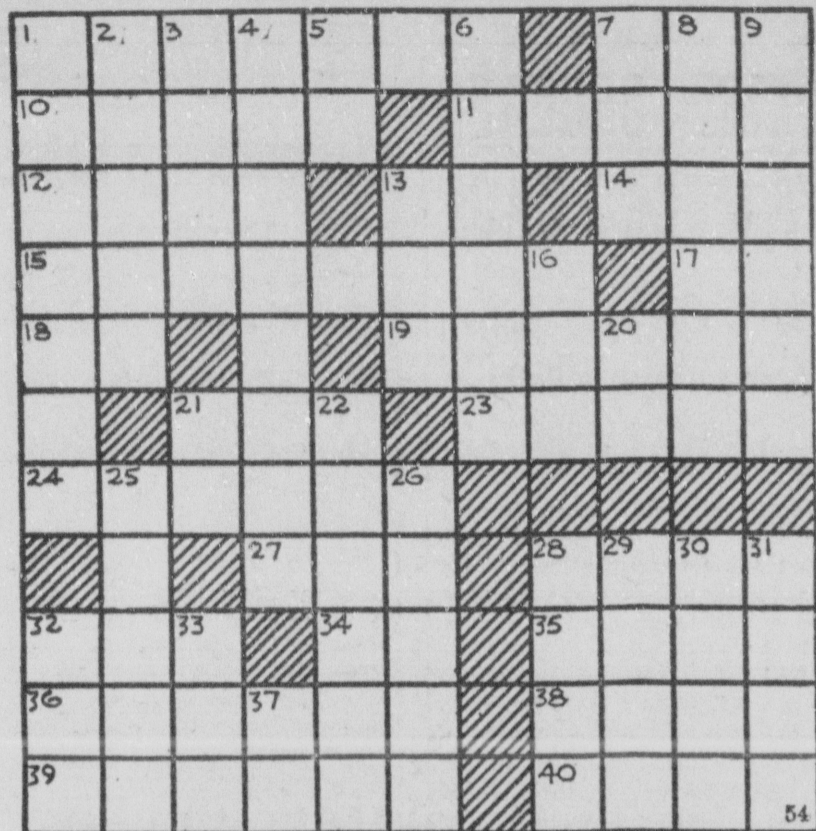

Dewey Nearly Through

Dewey said yesterday that his case was almost complete, that he had only a few more witnesses. He was jovial, obviously pleased with his evidence, the latest of which included a canceled check for $500, the first documentary evidence of a payment to Hines for protection; records of two telephone conversations obtained by wire-tappers relating to payments to Hines, and the testimony of Max D. Steuer, Tammany lawyer, that at Hines' request he had gone to see the United States attorney, and had tried to adjust Schultz's income tax troubles.

While Dewey spent the holiday week-end arranging his climax, the jurors and witnesses remained in protective custody and Hines, under $20,000 bond, sought diversion at his country home and beach club. Although many of Dewey's witnesses, those who have testified and those yet to be called, are held under high bond, and some are confessed accomplices in the racket, none is in jail. They have replied to question in court that they are being held "somewhere on Long Island."

Dewey had said he was taking no chances on gang avengers reaching his witnesses. And new ramifications of the trial, including one unsolved murder case, were cropping out almost daily. From the testimony of Davis, mentioning that he had witnessed the murder of Jules Martin, cafeteria racketeer, at Cohoes, N. Y., in 1935, Rensselaer county authorities had reopened that case and the prosecutor was attending

MEDICAL SOCIETY APPROVES PROGRAM FOR COUNTY HEALTH OFFICER

EXAMINATION OF SCHOOL PUPILS PART OF WORK

Commissioner To Suggest Immunization Of All Youngsters

The Pickaway County Medical Society, meeting Friday in Hanley's tea room, approved a health program for the coming year as set up by Dr. A. D. Blackburn, county health commissioner. The approval was made by a unanimous vote of the society.

The health commissioner will encourage the immunization of all children by the family physician during the pre-school age. He will also advise all parents of children, who are in school, to have their children immunized by their family doctor against smallpox and diphtheria. The county board of health will furnish toxoid and vaccine points free to physicians for use in the immunization of all children of the county, except those living in Circleville. The health commissioner will give smallpox and diphtheria immunization only to school children whose parents make such a request.

Examination Required

The health commissioner is required to make an examination of all school children. Any defects will be noted and made a matter of record. If, in the opinion of the health commissioner, the child needs the attention of a dentist or physician, the parent will be notified to consult the family dentist or physician. This method is used as a means of getting children, who need medical, surgical or dental care to seek such care from their physician or dentist.

The law provides that all children who have impetigo, scabies, ringworm or pediculosis be excluded from school. Last year, at the beginning of school 57 such cases were found and were sent home from school. Most of these cases are indigent. The health commissioner will treat these cases of skin disease on indigent children, the society decided.

The county commissioners have established a tuberculosis dispensary and have appropriated $1,000 a year for its maintenance. It is proposed that a diagnostic clinic be held every three months. The first clinic will be held at the office of the health commissioner, Sept. 20 and will be under the direction of Dr. Myron D. Miller, superintendent of Franklin County Sanatorium. This service is intended as an aid to the physicians of the county in the early diagnosis of tuberculosis. It is for city as well as county cases. Chest x-rays will be furnished free in all cases that are not able to pay. All physicians are invited and urged to bring or send their cases to this clinic. It is to be understood that all cases so examined are under the care of the family doctor and that the clinic is not for the purpose of treatment of cases but only as an aid in diagnosis.

The state department of health will assist in a tuberculosis skin testing program in the schools of the county. All positive cases will be given a chest x-ray. Each parent, whose child is x-rayed, will name the family doctor and if this doctor is equipped to take x-ray chest pictures, the child will be sent to him for this work. If the doctor, named by the parents, is not so equipped, the child will be sent to Berger hospital for x-ray. All children x-rayed will be examined in the chest clinic by competent chest men, and the x-ray plates read. A report of the findings will be taken to the family physician.

It was the desire of the health commissioner that all matters pertaining to his work be approved by the County Medical Society. He will work harmoniously with that society to the interest of public health and the medical profession, he promised.

Dr. F. V. Meriwether, U. S. public health service, spoke to the physicians on the subject "Medical Care for the Low Income Group of the Farm Security Administration at Atlanta." The subject concerned methods of families obtaining assistance for medical care.

TEN COUNTIES RECEIVE ANTI-RABIES TREATMENTS

Ten Pickaway counties are receiving treatment at the present time for the prevention of rabies. Eight residents of New Holland are undergoing treatment. Dr. A. D. Blackburn said that James Reed, 14, and Thomas Reed, 13, of near Commercial Point, have been placed under treatment as the result of being in contact with a cat in Columbus while visiting there.

FULLER FAVORED TO WIN MAJOR PRIZE OF $9,000

First Aviator Takes Off At 4:47 A. M. With Cleveland Goal

The record holder, Frank Fuller, was a favored entrant. He was flying the same Seversky pursuit plane in which last year he average 258 miles an hour in flying the distance in 7 hours, 54 minutes and 26 seconds.

Other entrants were Jimmy Hazlip, winner in 1932; Frank Cardova, New York; Bob Perlick, Glendale; Max Constant, Los Angeles; George S. Armistead, Los Angeles; Paul Mantz and Frank Clarke, Hollywood; and John Hinchley and Charles La Jotte.

The take offs were arranged at intervals so they would last until 8 a. m. First prize is $9,000. Second place will win $5,000, third $3,000, fourth $2,000 and fifth $1,000. An additional $1,000 will be awarded to the entrant that continues to Bendix, N. J., in the fastest elapsed time. A 15-minute stop will be allowed at Cleveland for those who choose to continue to Bendix.

Constant was second to start, taking off at 5:37 a. m. in a Beechcraft biplane similar to Hadley's. Constant, a Frenchman who was an aerial observer during the World War, teaches flying in Los Angeles. He is flying the same ship in which Miss Cochran won third in last year's race.

Cochran at 6:13 a. m.

Miss Cochran, one of the favorites in the race, took off at 6:13 a. m. The attractive aviatrix, who placed third last year, nosed her fast Seversky plane into the sky after a run of about 3000 feet. This was despite a 560-gallon load of gasoline to enable her to fly nonstop to Cleveland.

Miss Cochran was the first woman ever to pilot a military pursuit plane. The silver ship was flown here from New York last week by Maj. Alexander P. De Seversky, its builder, in the record time of 10 hours, 3 minutes. This was an average of 262 miles an hour, and De Seversky said Miss Cochran probably could fly much faster today.

Miss Cochran sent the sleek monoplane nosing up into the West, and then her lights were seen circling around to the east as she streaked for the mountains and the desert. She came to the airport in a police car. She wore a black slack suit. Her curls piled atop her head Grecian style.

Six minutes later a much slower Spartan cabin plane flown by Col. John B. Hinchey and Charles A. La Jotte took off at 6:19 a. m. Both are former World War fliers. Hinchey is a representative of the Spartan Aircraft company and expected to do most of the piloting with La Jotte, an oil company flier, as his navigator. La Jotte was at the controls at the take-off, however.

Paul Mantz, Hollywood movie stunt pilot, left at 6:25 a. m. His heavily-loaded Lockheed Orion took three-quarters of a mile to rise, and spectators feared momentarily that he would run off the end of the airport. Mantz was technical advisor for Amelia Earhart and was co-pilot when she flew in the Bendix race two years ago. He planned to re-fuel at El Paso, Texas.

Fuller roared away at 7:10 in another Seversky pursuer similar to Miss Cochran's. He planned to fly non-stop.

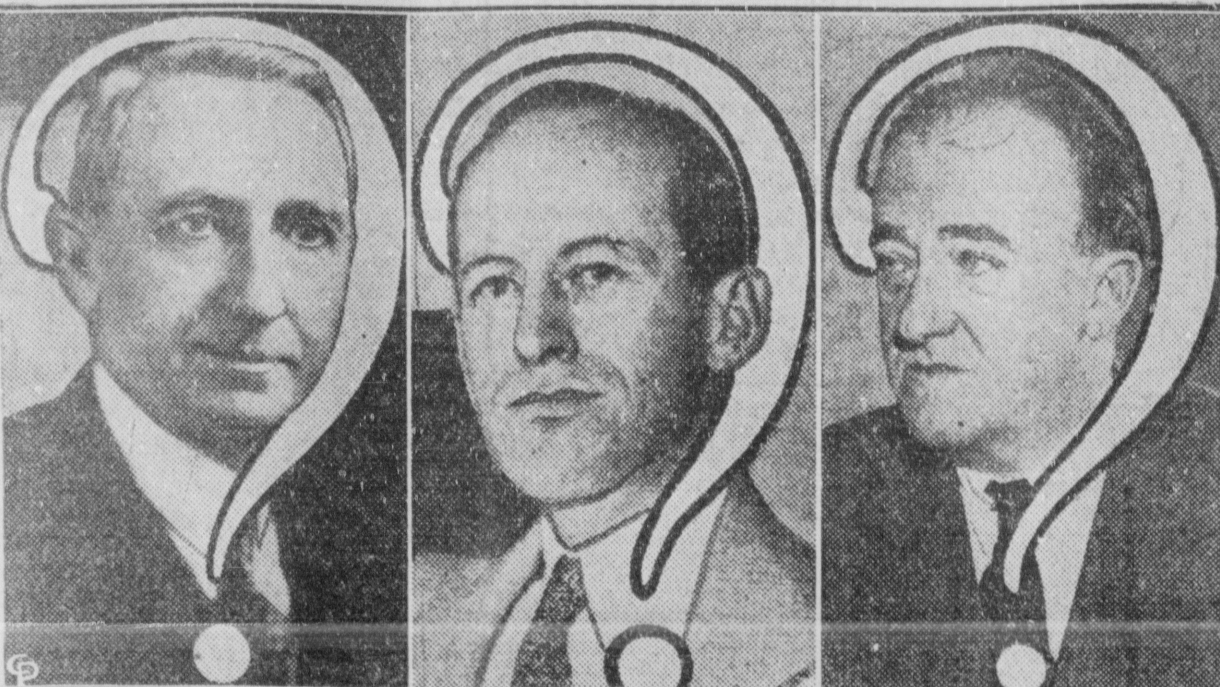

Nine minutes later Fuller radioed he was already over the Sierra Madre mountains, the first range he was to fly over on his route.

At 7:35 a. m. Armistead started off in a small Gee Bee special. The plane, with the pilot cockpit almost at the tail, was flown by Miss Cochran in the London-to-Melbourne air race. Armistead, an airplane salesman, took off with a shower of sparks from his skidding tail strut, and climbed slowly because of his 400-gallon load of fuel. He planned to cruise at nearly 250 miles per hour and refuel at either Kansas City or Wichita.

Will Tydings, George, O'Connor Win, Too?

Senator Walter F. George ... Georgia

Senator Millard E. Tydings ... Maryland

Representative John J. O'Connor ... New York

AS the primary elections swing into the home stretch, a glance at the records shows that there is about a 50-50 split in New Deal victories and losses among Democrats who received the administration nod or disapproval. And now political observers wonder how the President will fare with three men marked on his "purge" list, Senator Walter George of Georgia, Senator Millard E. Tydings of Maryland and Representative John J. O'Connor of New York. Four Democrats who won over administration-backed candidates are Senator Ellison D. "Cotton Ed" Smith of South Carolina, who defeated Gov. Olin D. Johnston; Senator Guy Gillette of Iowa, who emerged victorious over Representative Otha D. Wearin; Representative D. Worth Clark of Idaho, who beat Senator James P. Pope, and Sheridan Downey, victorious over Senator William Gibbs McAdoo in California.

Messrs. Donald E. Whitel and

POLICE ORDERED OFF MEEKS CASE

Patrol Follows Federal Agents To Clear Path; Fear Expressed

(Continued from Page One) away and stay away—not hide around some nearby corner." He did not indicate how long they were to remain away.

White's instructions came after the Federal Bureau of Investigation had withdrawn from the case "for the present," and members of the San Francisco office of the G-men had returned to their headquarters. They had found no evidence indicating there had been a violation of federal kidnapping laws.

No Word Received

The kidnappers issued their only instructions regarding payment of $15,000 ransom early yesterday when they entered the Meeks' home and forced Mrs. Meeks to accompany them. As they were leaving one of the two men shouted to Meeks, who was lying on the floor, his legs and arms bound and mouth closed by adhesive tape: "You'll get your wife back when we get $15,000. We know all about the electric chair. We'll contact you in a couple of days."

The kidnaper paused for a moment, then added: "Leave the $15,000 on the loading platform on Highway 99 between Sheridan and Wheatland if you want to get your wife back alive. Put it there before midnight next Saturday. We'll give you more instructions later."

White's orders were based on the assumption that if the officers withdrew other instructions might be delivered. Even before the officers were withdrawn grave fears were expressed for the 55-year-old woman's safety.

500 Join Poses

Almost foot by foot 500 searches covered the 13 miles between the Meeks home and Marysville where the kidnappers abandoned an automobile four hours after they left in the Meeks' home.

Searching parties beat their way through the brush along Bear and Feather rivers. They looked under culverts, in ditches and orchards.

"We are hoping against hope that our search does not yield the body of Mrs. Meeks," Sheriff Bert Ulrey had said. "But there is a distinct possibility it may. She is in the hands of desperate men."

The sheriff's words seemed to be an expression of the entire group of private citizens. National Guardsmen and Federal Bureau of Investigation agents who had aided in the search. They knew that at any moment they might find the 55-year-old woman's body, but they hoped the kidnappers had been less heartless.

The holdup was the latest banditry by the outlaw who has been charged with a score of robberies of gasoline stations in this area since last winter but who always has been able to evade capture.
